

Online Course Main Objective

Course objective

What is the main goal you are trying to help your students achieve? What is their pain point or struggle you are helping them overcome. Use this space to write that out.

Steps

Think about how you want to get your student from point A (where they are in the struggle with your topic) to point B (accomplishing the course objective). These steps will become the modules for your online course. List out those steps here:

Module objective

When creating your outline, you need to be clear on how each module works together to contribute to the overarching goal of your course. Use this space to write 1-2 sentences about the objective. Once you finish actually writing your lessons, use this objective as a check back point to make sure you hit your mark.

Module content (Your steps)

Take one step per module and write down everything you know about that step. Think about how learned that step for yourself, how you approach it now, how you accomplish it, etc. Break your process down into bite-sized lessons to keep your student engaged. List out those bite-sized lessons here:

Lesson objective

When creating your outline, you need to be clear on how each lesson contributes to the overarching goal of your module. Use this space to write 1-2 sentences about the objective. Once you finish actually writing your lessons, use it as a check back point to make sure you hit your mark.

Lesson content

Take one lesson idea and write down everything you know about that topic. Think about the struggles your students face with this topic and decide how you will walk them through this topic to accomplish this lesson objective.

Actionable step

Give your students actionable steps they can take at the end of your lesson for their homework. It can be as simple as a writing challenge or 2-day video project. Write down your homework ideas for this lesson here.
